Dolan Freed of Murder Charge.

Thomas Dolan was freed of the charge of murdering Patrick Mooney, on the night of April 20, 1912, in the Fayette Circuit Court, yesterday.

The Clark county jury reported to Judge Kerr in Circuit Court at 10:45 that they were hopelessly disagreed, and the Court discharged them.

Commonwealth's Attorney, John R. Allen immediately held a conference with Joseph Quisenberry, foreman of the jury, in which he ascertained how the jury stood. Then the Prosecuting Attorney made a motion that the court dismiss the case.

Judge Kerr accordingly directed that the indictment be dismissed and Dolan's bondsmen released.

In asking that the charge be dismissed Col. Allen said there had been five trials of the case and that a conviction had resulted in only one case, that being a manslaughter verdict.

Col. Allen said one of his chief reasons in asking for a dismissal was that the case had cost the Commonwealth a large amount of money and that it seemed impossible to procure a conviction.

Col. Allen in asking Judge Kerr to dismiss the case against Dolan, said he would have moved for a dismissal following the last trial, but for the fact that the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and in view of that fact he did not think that it was consistent to recommend a dismissal. He said he did not think that it was fair to Dolan to ask him to go into another trial in view of the five trials and no legal conviction.

Horse breeding in the United States is a profitable industry, the experts of the Department of Agriculture have discovered, and they set forth their discovery in a preliminary statement. The department bases its conclusions on the reports of 10,000 breeders in all corners of the country, and as a result declare that there is a profit of approximately 40 per cent. in a three year old colt over and above the cost of its raising.

The experts' announcement that the net cost of producing and raising a colt to the age of three years averages $96.54, while the selling price of the animals average $136.17. The principal cost of rearing a foal to majority is chargeable to feeding, 54 per cent. of the outlay going to keep it in hay, grain, pasture and other feeds, and 16 per cent. to care and shelter. The remainder is necessary service and miscellaneous items.

The department found that the cost of 3 year olds was greatest in Rhode Island, where they brought on the average of $156.60 apiece. In New Mexico a good animal of that age could be bought for $69.50, and Wyoming and Texas, in the order named, were the most reasonable markets.
